

How does agriculture 'feed' our nation?

Agribusinesses greatly contribute to Malaysia's economy in many ways. A healthy agriculture sector not only contributes to national income and development, but also ensures national food security, opens up employment in various supporting industries, provides raw materials for manufacturing, drives research and infrastructural development and attracts foreign exchange. Agrobank is proud to be the mandated development financial institution championing the sector since 1969, providing full chain financing for agriculture; from upstream to downstream activities.

Agrobank's end to end financial support extends across the agriculture value chain:
